nown for its breathtaking wilderness and, perhaps more famously, for its potatoes, Idaho is home to a fast-growing wine industry and fantastic wines. Nestled between the Rocky Mountains and the Snake River, Idaho wine regions nurture the grapes with a moderate climate, limited precipitation, and a consistent growing season, which adds complexity to the grapes.

The characteristically cold winters allow vines to go dormant gradually while ridding the plants of bugs and discouraging disease. A combination of cold nights and hot days serves to balance acids and sugars. The limited amount of rainfall allows growers to control water through irrigation.

Idaho is known for growing and producing classic varieties including Syrah, Merlot, Riesling and Chardonnay, along with more adventurous wines such as Tempranillo and Malbec.

160 YEARS
IN THE MAKING

Idaho is considered, by some, part of the new frontier of wine-growing areas of the United States.

However, some of the first grapes planted in the Pacific Northwest were actually grown in Lewiston in the 1860's.

Ancient Lake Idaho is formed, stretching 200 miles from eastern Oregon to Twin Falls.

An article dated September 5, 1865 in the Idaho Statesman reported that a vineyard of Royal Muscadine cuttings had been planted early in the spring of the previous year (1864) and it had survived the winter well and was beginning to produce grapes in Lewiston

Prohibition halts the wine industry across the country with the 18th Amendment

Grapes planted in Snake River Valley

The second bonded winery was established in 1972 in Troy, Idaho called Chateau Juliaetta. They grew and produced wine from a hybrid grape called Chelois and they also purchased grapes from some local growers in the valley.

SNAKE RIVER VALLEY SOUTHWESTERN IDAHO WINE REGION

he Snake River Valley American Viticultural Area (AVA), approved in April of 2007, encompasses 8,263 square miles with 1,125 acres planted. Overlaying the ancient Lake Idaho, the shoreline creates its natural boundaries. The result is a distinctive grape-growing region whose ancient volcanic sediment has bestowed fertile, welldraining soil that gives growers better control throughout the grapegrowing process.

EAGLE SOUTHWESTERN IDAHO WINE REGION FOOTHILLS

he Eagle Foothills American Viticultural Area (AVA), approved in November 2015, encompasses 49,815 acres with 80 acres planted currently. This sub-AVA of the larger Snake River Valley AVA is the only one located completely within the state of Idaho. Nestled in the foothills north of Eagle, Idaho, the slope and aspect of the Eagle Foothills play an important role in sunlight reception, cold air drainage, frost and wind protection.
